PROJECT DETAILS

Sharkey were responsible for delivering the interior fit package for Microsoft at their flagship Waverley Gate offices in Edinburgh.

The works included the installation of partitioning systems down the centre of the office floor to create the “collaboration spine” – a series of different double ended spaces. Designed by Michael Laird Architects, the space included fully glazed meeting pods, open and informal meeting areas, in trays, cloaks, admin hubs and a café breakout area.

There is a total of 52 open plan workstations, capable of accommodating a mobile workforce of 80.

Working alongside project managers Faithful & Gould, Sharkey were able to deliver a successful project within the high profile Waverley Gate development in Edinburgh.
