PROJECT DETAILS

Navy Blue a strategic communications group with offices in London and Edinburgh entrusted Sharkey with the task of converting this well know and listed Edinburgh building.

The client required a specialised working environment where they can bring together creativity and strategy to create intelligent design.

Firstly, the site had to be taken back to its original shell before Sharkey transformed the building from the basement up. Extensive excavations, scaffolding work and refurbishments were all necessary before this historical shell even began to take shape.

In the main hall the client was delivered an impressive contemporary open plan workspace with a feature mezzanine split-level floor, fully fitted café and directors work area. To compliment this the original features of the building such as the rustic iron and wood clad roof beams were preserved to great effect This added the finishing touches to another very high quality and prestigious contract for Sharkey.
